Allianz finances African infrastructure projects by investing into Emerging Africa Infrastructure Fund (EAIF)

- €75 million and US$25 million investment in EAIF
- First transaction in dedicated Allianz Africa investment strategy
- Allianz partners with Investec Asset Management (IAM), benefits from growth potential of African economies

Munich, April 10, 2018

Allianz is providing financing of €75 million and US$25 million, both over 12 years, as EAIF's first insurance- investor. The EAIF debt financing is the second Emerging Markets (EM) blended finance transaction within 12 months, run by Allianz Global Investors (AllianzGI) on behalf of Allianz Group investing for their insurance portfolios. This brings the total commitment of Allianz Group to EM blended finance through AllianzGI infrastructure debt platform to over $600 million.

This EAIF investment creates value for Allianz' insurance customers and fits excellently into the international investment strategy of Allianz Group. The African continent offers positive long term growth outlook driven by factors such as favorable demographics, an expanding middle-class and urbanisation.

EAIF is part of the Private Infrastructure Development Group (PIDG), a donor-backed organisation that encourages private sector infrastructure investment in the world's lowest-income countries. PIDG blends public and private finance to reduce investment risk, promote economic development and combat poverty. Allianz's investment in EAIF marks the start of PIDG's drive to attract greater levels of funding from institutional and commercial sources.

Nazmeera Moola, Head of EAIF's fund manager, Investec Asset Management says, "Bringing the vision and support of a lender of Allianz's calibre on board represents a milestone in terms of mobilising private capital into infrastructure projects across the continent. This debt raising exemplifies the gains to be made from PIDG's blended finance approach. IAM has a successful track record of co-investing private and public funds side by side in both private credit and private equity funds in Africa."

"We believe in Africa's growth potential and will invest across different asset classes across the continent. The partnership with EAIF and Investec Asset Management is an important contribution to this initiative and illustrates how to create attractive risk-return profiles with the necessary downside protection for our policyholders”, says Sebastian Schroff, Global Head of Private Debt, Allianz Investment Management.

Nadia Nikolova, Director, Infrastructure Debt at AllianzGI says: “We are delighted to put our infrastructure debt expertise to work to help facilitate Allianz’ investment strategy in Africa. Over the last five years, our global infrastructure debt platform has invested over €10 billion into infrastructure projects across the globe. As Africa unlocks its economic potential, the continent will become increasingly important for institutional investors.”

In addition to Allianz, KfW has again made a key contribution of around US$ 140 million. "We are pleased to expand our commitment to the EAIF. This partnership and the investments in renewable energy and cleaner technologies strengthen economic development across large parts of the African continent and improve the quality of life of those living there, "says Helmut Gauges, Head of the Africa/Middle East Directorate at KfW Development Bank.

Since its foundation, EAIF has invested around US$1.3billion, which has been instrumental in attracting over US$10.9 billion of private capital investment to over 70 projects in some 22 sub-Saharan countries. The EAIF portfolio has also been mapped against the UN’s Sustainable Development Goals, ensuring that projects can directly, demonstrably and quantifiably contribute to positive impact across the continent.
