2019 UPDATE
2019 FY RESULTS: STRONG GLOBAL GROWTH DRIVEN BY INDIA BUSINESS – PREMIUMS PEAK AT EUR 410 MN

- Revenues increased by 34% compared to 2018 to reach EUR 410 mn. Continued growth of credit life and agriculture insurance in India are the main drivers.

- The number of people reached grew by 5.3 mn after a significant drop in the previous period linked to the one-off effect of the maturity of two-year credit life policies written in India in 2016.

FEATURE STORY 1: RENEWING OUR AFRICAN AMBITION AND LEVERAGING PARTNERSHIPS

We see an interesting evolution of our Emerging Consumers business in Africa and thought it is a good moment to ask Coenraad Vrolijk for his perspective.

What are the key African dynamics you see related to Emerging Consumers?
Emerging consumers represent ca. 700 mn people in Africa, and securing their financial stability is core to building inclusive growth across the continent. Today, key challenges are the digitization of our distribution channels and the diversification of our product portfolio, with innovations to offer in index crop insurance, health services and SME covers.

What is the strategic relevance of this customer group, and what is your ambition going forward?
Since 2008, Allianz has acquired a wealth of experience with emerging consumers in West Africa and Madagascar, mainly with credit life and funeral products sold via telecoms and MFIs. As Allianz is expanding its footprint on the continent, we are also reaching the mass market through alternative channels such as BIMA in Ghana and SafeBoda in Kenya, two portfolio companies of Allianz X.

Which extra value can Allianz bring to African customers?
Thanks to its economies of scale, Allianz can minimize fixed distribution and IT costs, and hence maximize the payback to customers. We have the capabilities to design among the best tailored products, and we can leverage our global and local partnerships to really reach the underinsured.
FEATURE STORY 2: ALLIANZ, BIMA AND GIZ PARTNER TO DEVELOP NEXT GENERATION OF MOBILE INSURANCE

In summer 2019, Allianz teamed up with emerging market insurtech leader BIMA and German development agency GIZ to jointly grow small-ticket mobile insurance in a sustainable way.

Our shared aim is to design new health insurance offerings and develop direct distribution models to maximize client value. Allianz, BIMA and GIZ will also engage in best-practice exchanges with market stakeholders and regulatory bodies.

The collective ambition is to reach one-hundred thousand new customers in Ghana in 2020, and to dedicate around EUR 4.2 mn to the overall initiative.

“BIMA has been very successful at scaling microinsurance through mobile operators. This new partnership helps us develop a new direct to consumer business model, and build our customer engagement strategy, in a way that we could never do alone.”

Russell Haresign
Africa Head of Operations BIMA

“Our objective is to support sustainable market development for mobile microinsurance, putting special emphasis on customer value and protection. Working with the industry leaders in a public-private-partnership is a great lever to do so.”

Matthias Range
Head of Project GIZ

“We are bringing together unique stakeholders to innovate and create long-lasting solutions that increase the demand for voluntary insurance in Emerging Consumers business.”

WHERE WE DO IT

N.B.: Number of markets and people reached as of 31.12.2019. Premium figures are full-year cumulative figures. Whenever possible double counting is avoided, e.g. if one person has both a life and a home insurance policy. Products launched but with less than 1,000 insured are not featured. Total customer and revenue data include figures from non-consolidated entities.
