3) GTL = Group Term Life (includes Credit Life)
2014 full year results: Assessment

- With over €20mn contribution, BajajAllianz General India drove premium growth through its first time participation in a government-subsidized crop-index insurance scheme\(^1\).

- On top, growth in term life/credit life offset the gradual decline in premiums of an Indian micro-endowment on phase out since 2013 for regulatory changes.

- Term life/credit life was also the key driver for the steep 70% increase of number of insured lives to 44.6 million people.

- Addressing the ongoing challenge that most customers still only hold one single insurance product, i.e. term life/credit life, Allianz Indonesia has carried out a successful customer conversion pilot (→ page 6).

- The task is now to scale up customer conversion across products and markets.

Allianz is committed to increase the insurance coverage per person through value-adding voluntary products that are in line with our microinsurance values p.16 and operational quality standards p.22.

---

\(^1\) In line with our Allianz Group microinsurance definition, only premiums with up to 50% premium subsidies are counted as microinsurance. In some Indian regions, subsidies exceed 50% of premium. This business, being closer to social protection, is excluded from our microinsurance reporting figures.
“They keep asking for more”
Yoga Prasetyo\(^1\) talks about the results of a customer conversion pilot in Indonesia

In your last interview two years ago, you said you would introduce more voluntary microinsurance products. Why is that important and where do you stand now?

Yoga Prasetyo: Voluntary products are much better than mandatory products to build knowledge on insurance and awareness about the Allianz brand. What we have done so far is mostly credit life insurance which is mandatory. Now, with voluntary offers, people start thinking: Do I need this product? What is the benefit? Can I trust that company called Allianz? Last year we started offering voluntary products through four distribution partners, two micro-banks and two cooperatives. Although it was only a limited pilot, a good five percent of the existing credit life customers took out the additional voluntary offer. That is a very encouraging result.

Your customer conversion pilot looks like a success. What are the 3 key take-aways?

YP: First, it is absolutely key to have a shared vision with our distribution partners that is built upon mutual trust. Second, offering voluntary products should not create much additional workload for these partners, otherwise they won't make an effort. And third, our recent MILK claim assessment has shown, that customers can be even better protected with voluntary products such as spouse cover. So also regarding social value, such “upselling” makes a lot of sense. Customers are aware of this, too. In our pilot, they kept asking for more insurance coverage.

What’s your next plans?

YP: To satisfy customer demand, we will expand our range of voluntary products, and we will offer them through more distribution partners. At the same time, we also work on a more convenient premium payment mechanism, for example through mobile phones. So people can continue to conveniently pay their premium without continuous intensive assistance from Allianz and our distribution partners.

You have just published a Case Study on your pilot. What can readers expect from it?

YP: With the case study, we want to share our experience about our efforts to escape from the “credit life trap”. Credit life is a perfect product to enter the microinsurance market, but you should not stop at that point. Hopefully, some readers will be encouraged to promote similar efforts. And it is written in a diary-like way. So hopefully it will also be an entertaining read.

What is Microinsurance?

Microinsurance offers protection against the risks in life, specifically for low-income people in developing countries and emerging markets, with customized products and processes.²

Market size:
- 2.7bn people
- USD 40bn potential premium per year³

World population by income¹

- Low income: 2.7bn
- Middle & high income: 3.0bn
- Extremely poor: 1.2bn

1) 2010 data, based on World Bank PovcalNet (2014), World Bank World Population Dataset (2014); Income measured at Purchasing Power Parity (PPP) per capita per day.
2) The Allianz Group microinsurance definition may differ from local regulatory definitions. See our more detailed Allianz operational microinsurance definition.
3) SwissRe Sigma (2010)
What is Microinsurance: A Customer Story from Indonesia

- In 2007, Ms. Siti Muhibah takes out a 10-month microcredit of US$100 from a microfinance institution in Jakarta to grow her cookies shop.
- Her loan comes with an Allianz micro life insurance that costs US$1.20 for 10 months.
- Her daughter Zakiyah (photo) receives US$200 from Allianz.
- On top, Allianz pays off the rest of the loan.

Claim payout: US$200
- US$50 for funeral
- US$15 as savings
- US$135 as investment for her textile trading business

- As a result, Zakiyah increases her income from US$2 to US$6/day.
- She can compensate for her mother’s lost income and take care of a family of six.
Why we do it: Micro delivers a double bottom line of social and business benefits

Social Benefit: Microinsurance protects socio-economic progress

Business Benefit: Allianz can grow with customers from micro to conventional business
Number of markets, insured lives and assets are per 31 December, except for crop-index products which are counted by policies sold throughout the year (because most have short duration and expire after harvest time). Premium figures are Jan-Dec figures. Double counting, e.g., if a person has two different Allianz life insurance products, is avoided where possible but cannot be entirely ruled out. Products launched after June 2013 and still with less than 1,000 insured are not reported. The Allianz microinsurance definition may differ from local regulatory definitions.

How we do it: We constantly assess the quality of our products

- Allianz assesses its microinsurance products on seven product quality criteria as outlined in the Allianz microinsurance assessment tool.
- The global micro portfolio as per Dec-2014 performs as below:

![Bar chart showing product quality assessments]

- Generally, Allianz products perform best on “simplicity” and “low transaction costs”
- The overall average has decreased from 0.940 to 0.913
- This drop is due to the over-proportional growth of non-voluntary products like credit life and Indian crop-index which has led to a decrease in the “voluntary” criterion from 0.3 to 0.2 and the customer “education criterion” from 1.1 to 1.0
- However, the number of products with particularly low ranking (<1.0) has been reduced from 7 to 5 (→ product pool)
- Moreover, 1 new voluntary products was launched in 2014, and voluntary riders were introduced in Indonesia.

1) All microinsurance products in 2014 (n=17 products) are included in the analysis, whether they cover lives or assets. The assessments per product are self assessments (as per Allianz product pool) and have been weighted by the number of insured per product. This means that good quality products with few insured have less weight than products with lower ranking but many insured.
How we do it: Distribution

Allianz’ local entities are the drivers & business owners of microinsurance. They work with over 550 experienced partners to reach out to customers.

Weather-Based Crop Insurance Scheme (WBCIS)
- Premium is subsidized up to 75%
- Seasonal contracts are awarded to local insurers on a bidding basis
- BajajAllianz General participates since 2014
- In 2014, BajajAllianz covered a total of 2mn farmers, thereof 1.1mn with subsidies >50%, i.e. not counted as microinsurance (compare p.5 & p.13)

China

Multiperil Crop & Livestock Insurance
- Several programs of local insurance companies
- Covers over 100mn farmers
- AllianzRE provides proportional and non-proportional reinsurance cover since 2009

---

1) See operational microinsurance definition of Allianz Group

- Premiums are partially (>50%) or fully subsidized through government funding
- Due to large public subsidies, these schemes do not fall under microinsurance
- Like microinsurance, such schemes mostly or exclusively benefit low-income families
